The accident occurred when Schach drove onto the tracks unopposed that the train, which had stopped, was starting to move forward. The right fender and running board of the auto were damaged.

Catches at the crossing were not lowered because the watchman, O. E. Palmer of 183 North Howard st., understood, on a signal from the train engineer, that traffic be allowed to pass. Patrolman George Reash and James Hassey said.

Plane Crash Victim In Critical Shape

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 13.—Dr. William McHugh issued a bulletin today saying that C. G. Challinor, injured in the wreck of the airliner Sun Racer, is in a "very, very critical" condition.

The physician mentioned in his bulletin that a second leg operation had been performed on the Cleveland business man.

Both Challinor's ankles were broken when the big transport wrecked on Chestnut ridge Tuesday, killing 11 persons and injuring three. His left leg was amputated below the knee Thursday in an attempt to prevent spread of infection.

While a huge bonfire on the mountain was consuming the last of the Sun Racer yesterday, surgeons operated again and removed Challinor's leg at the hip.

The condition of Mrs. Hilda Ellenstein, wife of the mayor of Newark, N. J., remained unchanged. She was badly hurt.

Nellie Granger, hostess of the Sun Racer and the only other survivor, was denied visitors. Doctors said she still suffers from shock.

ITALIAN PLANES OVER ETHIOPIA

Squadron Fails to Bomb Addis Ababa, However, and Turns Back

(By Associated Press)

ADDIS ABABA, April 13.—Nine Italian planes flew over Ethiopia's capital today, throwing the populace into panic, just as a government spokesman said Emperor Haile Selassie was leading a movement of 300,000 fresh warriors to the northern front.

The Fascist aerial squadron appeared out of the north, completed its flight over the city, and turned back to the northern front.

On Scouting Tour

The planes apparently were bent only on a scouting mission, dropping no bombs. On their last previous appearance—nine days ago—the Italian pilots attacked the Addis Ababa airbase but also refrained from bombarding the capital itself.

The government spokesman said Emperor Haile Selassie was carrying on energetically his personal direction of the war with Italy.

Reserve manpower was dispatched to defensive positions from Lake Tana, sphere of British influence in the northwest, to Lake Ashang, in the central sector 100 miles north of Dessay, centering about Walde, scene of an earlier Ethiopian defeat.

The government spokesman said a direct message from the emperor indicated he was safe, despite delicate health.

A venire of 75 names will be pulled from the jury wheel by the jury commission April 17, and the jury for the trial of Rogers will be drawn May 1, the latter also consisting of 75 names.

Change of date in the trial of Adams has been due to the fact that Atty. Robert M. Brookes will appear in Federal court during the week this case was first set trial.

JURY SUMMONS DR. J. F. CONDON

"Jafsie" Asked to Appear Wednesday at Wendel Investigation

(By Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., April 13.—Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, who testified he gave Bruno Richard Hauptmann $50,000 to ransom the Lindbergh baby, has been requested to appear Wednesday before a grand jury investigating charges that another man—Paul H. Wendel of Trenton, killed the child.

Allyne M. Freeman, foreman of the Mercer county grand jury, sent the following telegram to the Bronx educator's home last night:

"We request your appearance before the Mercer county grand jury Wednesday, April 15, in connection with the Wendel case. Your expenses will be paid."

Wendel, a disbarred lawyer, wanted on embezzlement charges, was lodged in a Trenton jail three nights before Hauptmann was to die and formally charged with the murder for which Hauptmann later was executed. He said he was abducted by four men in Brooklyn, N. Y., two months ago and tortured into "confessing" the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Assistant District Attorney William F. McGuinness of Brooklyn said one of the men sought for questioning in connection with Wendel's abduction was Murray Bleefeld, alias Moe Taylor, whose father's home was in the neighborhood in which Wendel said he was held captive.

The grand jury, which had the prison warden delay Hauptmann's execution three days and then voted to "discontinue" the Wendel investigation the afternoon before Hauptmann died, will resume its inquiry tomorrow.

Bridgeport Driver Draws Heavy Fine

Mayor George Harroff today fined William E. Hayes, 28, of Bridgeport, $100 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Mayor Harroff told the motorist he should be thankful to the officer for taking him off the highway, thereby removing "the greatest menace on the highway today."

Hayes' driving rights for one year also were suspended. He paid his fine and was released.

Pig, Now Deceased, Causes Two Arrests

This is a story of a pig.... now in pork chop heaven.

The porker was the victim of a "ride." He was taken from the farm of Allen Ritchey near Salem Sunday night, never to return. He died a horrible death—battered.

Ritchey told Patrolmen George Reash and James Hassey that Jacob Kopp of South Howard st. and Frank Apple were guilty and signed a warrant charging petty larceny. Police arrested them and found a pig at Mike Congo's residence on Railroad st.

The dead animal was taken for safe keeping and placed in a butcher shop.

Kopp and Apple, in jail today, said Ritchey asked them to take another pig to a relative's home and that they came back for another one. There's some misunderstanding, they said.

Mayor George Harroff deferred arraignment of the pair today in view of a possible settlement.

MURDER CASE CLUES REVEALED

Two Suspects now Sought By Police In Bath-tub Slaying

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 13.—Police sought two unidentified men today as suspects in the bathtub slaying of attractive Mrs. Nancy Titterton.

One was described as tall and an effeminate type, the other as stocky and coarse-appearing.

Margaret Arbeiter, 30, a housemaid, told detectives the stocky man twice tried to force an entrance to the home of her employer, J. D. Wooster Lambert, retired member of the Lambert Chemical company, less than 24 hours before Mrs. Titterton was slain last Friday.

Lambert resides at 17 Beekman Place, while Mrs. Titterton and her husband, Lewis, an executive of the National Broadcasting company, had their apartment at 22 Beekman Place.

The second man was described by Miss Helen Meyer, a Park avenue costumer, as tall, handsome, and having sandy brown hair. She said he displayed a detailed knowledge of the social set in which Mr. and Mrs. Titterton moved.

Miss Meyer said this suspect called at her shop last Tuesday and maneuvered to be alone with her. He gave her a check for $35 toward the cost of putting on a style show at a country club near Deal, N. J., and then persuaded her to cash a $5 check. She later found the checks were worthless and the country club non-existent. Samples of his writing were obtained from the checks.

He told the court, however, that he would forfeit it, as on that day he would be honeymooning on a world cruise. Mrs. Agnes Hofman Baldwin, his intended bride of Wednesday, was with him at the time of the arrest.

Reduction On Load Limits Is Lifted

Although the state ruling which reduced load limits of trucks on highways about the state was lifted at 1 a. m. today, the Columbiana County Motor club and Salem state highway patrolmen announced that trucks still will be watched for overweight.

The load limit reduction was made so that heavy trucks would not add further damage to roads, already in bad shape as a result of the severe winter weather.

The officers explained today that trucks equipped with six-inch tires and over are allowed 18,000 pounds per axle and that trucks with smaller tires, 15,000 pounds per axle.

AN OLD MAN

When Plutarco Elias Calles, once Mexico's "strong man," says he is through with politics he means it. Banished from the nation whose affairs have taken most of his life, Gen. Calles, whatever he might wish to do, is an old man. In politics, age is an important factor.

Time and effort would be required if Gen. Calles were to seek to reestablish his once high position in Mexico. The opposition's leaders are younger and stronger than he. Among his followers there are youth and strength, too, but the general himself is weary with years and infirmities.

It always is interesting to try to find an answer to the question of whether strong men make circumstances or circumstances make strong men. Perhaps Gen. Calles owes his leadership to circumstances, but it seems equally true that he created at least some of the circumstances which made him strong. It is interesting to recall that he used deportation freely as a weapon against his opponents when he was strong and they were weak. He is not surprised that the same weapon should be used against him.

Apparently, he lacks power to fight back effectively, though nothing ever is impossible in Mexican politics. America's southern neighbor is going through a period of momentous changes—more momentous, probably, than citizens of this relatively stable government realize. The Spaniards, who upset a communal civilization when they seized Mexico, left to their victims a heritage of chaos still vividly enough to make that ancient country one of the most restless parts of the earth. Strangely, modern Mexico resembles in many ways modern Spain, which just a few days ago repudiated the leadership of Niceto Alcala Zamora, once the Spanish "strong man." In both instances, opposition was presented in the form of liberalism.

WAS HE RIGHT?

It was almost a year ago today that the late Frank H. Simonds, noted commentator on European events, addressed the annual banquet of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. When he spoke, Europe had just barely survived the crisis precipitated by Hitler's announcement of German rearmament. Earlier, the assassination of Chancellor Dollfus of Austria and Germany's violent quitting of the League of Nations had strained the powers of peacemakers to the utmost.

Inevitably, Mr. Simonds prophesied, another crisis would occur which Europe could not surmount. In April, 1935, though, Germany was not prepared for war. "We are then," Mr. Simonds declared, "confronted with the possibility of one, two or even three years of troubled truce. During that time the objective of all German statesmanship will be to cover the time of preparation by seeking to break the coalition."

The grim march of history seems to be bearing out Mr. Simonds' words. Flames of war are not only smoldering angrily over Europe and Asia, but they are threatening to burst out at any moment in a series of wars which would shatter the old alignment of nations and create new antagonisms. Whether Hitler has been genius enough thus to shape events cannot be proved, but it is certain that present conditions bear out Mr. Simonds' thesis and work to the advantage of Germany.

On the one hand, Great Britain appears at last to be determined to check Italy but willing to meet Germany more than half way. On the other hand France is extremely reluctant to press action against Italy but wants to build up strong alliances against Germany. As a result, Anglo-French relations are severely strained, and both Hitler and Mussolini have been able to proceed with their programs because of lack of unity between the powers which could have checked them.

Germany is reputed to have understandings with Poland and Japan and to be moving to an agreement with Czechoslovakia, member of the little entente. Already Hitler has "rescued" his country from the stranglehold of Versailles and Locarno. If he can succeed in fanning small flames over the rest of Europe and so divert attention of the powerful fire-fighters, he may proceed with his preparations for achieving German destiny. Too late the leading nations may realize the old alignment of powers has been broken, that Hitler holds the torch over the powder keg—and is ready to drop it.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, April 14

A day of excellent promise for pushing the interests to high goals of progress and prosperity is read from the predominant planetary configurations. It is an auspicious time for seeking the influence and friendly support of those of power and prestige, especially from heads of corporations, rings, diplomatic circles or in secret organizations.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent auspices for advancement and profitable arrangements with those in positions of power and prestige. This is especially strong in connection with rings, combines and secret organizations or intrigues, or through tact understandings or shrewd bargains. But be careful in employment as there are some hints of unpleasantness or perplexity. Private affiliations may have romantic developments of a surprising nature.

A child born on this day may be clever, ambitious and subtle, gaining its ends by intrigue, tact or diplomacy. Its private life may be romantic.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 13—Diary: A post-card from Dick Berlin in Pago Pago, Samoa, and putting up at the hotel where Sadie Thompson originated. Then abroad with my lady who gave me a bit of what for when I article a half dozen loudly patterned ties. And we popped in a moment to see Maybelle Manning.

Came news from Tom Harvey, my school fellow and son of the illustrious "Coin," was running for Sheriff of a West Virginia county. And I can attest his bravery for he once plucked me from drowning in the Ohio. So to Alice Rohe's tea to the young Jack Howards.

Hattie Bell Johnston to dinner, full of sparkling talk after traveling about with Elise and Tom Yawkey and their Boston ball club. And then with Harry Burton to the Dutch Treat show, but home fairly betimes to finish Rebecca West's brilliantly writ "The Thinking Reed." A corker.

Bella and Samuel Spewack are caught up in the whirl of that theatrical success that strikes lightning-like and makes playwrighting a thrilling vocation. Only a few years ago they were young marrieds eeking out a bleak rooming house existence in obscure newspaper jobs—and dreaming of the cottage near the thicket's edge. Today they ride the big wave as result of their hit, "Boy Meets Girl," are guests of honor at the Dutch Treat, visit their old Delancy street neighborhood all turned up in a low-numbered, chauffeured limousine and try to wear their pomp with humility.

Quandry: What's become of hypnotism and all the miracles it promised? We were to have painless dentistry and no more soaks among other blessings. Disillusionment: Almost every boy has had an ambition to see a knight in complete armor moving. What the realists have put us off with even to maturity is lamentable. In "St. Joan" on the stage and in the "Crusades" on the screen they are lavish with helmets—and bare legs! Could one fight Saracens or English with nothing on the legs but—a second!—genouilleres, those jointed pieces over the knees? Most of the bold armored knights we have seen are pushovers!

I wonder if others who love the stage are conscious of a lack of spontaneity expressed in much wooden acting this season—the lack of intensity for "feeling the part?" Dead pan faces slowly turning from side to side and voices the French call white—which means head tones. Mansfield could thrill with his back to the footlights. Without a movement one might pick him out of a crowd of supers. One of the best of the mute actors is Edward Ellis. Lines meant nothing. There was, for him, no such a thing as a "fat" part. He "fattened" it.

Radio program executives are in repair over human material for broadcasting. They say most of the celebrities, whose names might draw, want to step smack into important money without preliminary grounding. And that is why so many go out like the proverbial light after a few weeks. In several instances, too, the failures have damaged their established careers. I am reliably informed Alexander Woolcott did his first season's radio talks for nothing. But jumped into big money right afterward. Edwin Hill did much rehearsing and trying out before accepting an engagement. Major Bowes was 10 years on a Sunday morning hour before the big splash.

Lisbon—Possibilities are that Lisbon's new $70,000 high school building, which has been in the course of construction since last fall, will be razed. The school board and Lisbon residents are dissatisfied with the construction of the building, the walls of which are bulged in many places and the mortar crumbling to such an extent that the bricks are loose and unsafe from the foundation up.

Facing the probability that the state health board will step in and displace the local board of health in order to get results in the year-old movement to establish plumbing inspection in Salem, the members of the board of health have chosen W. E. Hill and James Filler to act with the health officer in investigating and remedying the situation.

Hearing Defects

A recent health report points out the need of early detection of failing hearing in the school child. Attention should be given not only to the patient, but also to his family. In a given case, any study of it is incomplete without knowing about the hearing power of the relatives, particularly of the parents.

Dr. Copeland

I say this because, speaking generally, ear disease, like many other disabilities, is apt to run in families. For this reason, the report mentioned states that deafness in any member of that family. This should be done in order that preventive measures may be started at once.

The importance of proper hearing cannot be overstated. It is especially important to the school child. Many a child who is inattentive and backward in school is the victim of defective hearing. When this defect is corrected the child makes normal progress in his school work.

Often Deficient But how can we detect ear trouble at an early age? This is often difficult. Though complete deafness is easy to discover, the child only partially deaf may escape attention and consequently may be neglected for several years. When this happens the case goes on to permanent deafness.

Defective hearing in progressive form should always be suspected in an individual who complains of temporary attacks of deafness, a sense of dullness in the head, heaviness or blockage of the ears, symptoms which persist for more than a few minutes. When these symptoms hang on, especially after exposure to cold, swimming, head colds, fatigue or chronic constipation, suspicion of some real ear defect should be aroused.

If a child continually asks for the repetition of words or phrases, or says he hears better in a noisy place, or is unable to locate the direction from which sounds come, the ears should be examined. Occasionally the child may complain of tenderness, itching, heat, or pain in or about the ear. Older children may volunteer the information that they suffer from head noises.

Examination Advised The child we are now considering may be the victim of dizziness, nausea, vomiting, or "jumping" of the eyes, medically known as "nystagmus." A moist, running, or discharging ear demands immediate medical attention.

When regular examination of school children is continued over a period of several years, I am sure the number of children to grow into permanent defective hearing or deafness will be materially reduced. Do not fall into the common fault that most parents have, in that they hesitate to admit any defect in a child. Too often a mother will suspect trouble but hesitates to acknowledge it. Delay is dangerous; please don't forget this. Early treatment is essential to the prevention of permanent deafness.

CHAPTER XXIX

"It's just a question of specialization," said Gottlieb, struggling into his overcoat. "I specialized in business all my life. I don't mind telling you we have a big proposition here and we're going to put it over. There's a fortune in it, but if we aren't sharp it could easily turn out the wrong way around."

"If there's any way I can help," said O'Hara, "let me know."

"Nothing you can do at all," said Gottlieb, wrestling into an inner pocket for a cigar. "You and Juliet stay on the job and keep things humming. The man I've got to see is McSpadden. I'll probably keep him up all night estimating costs and production capacity. Mind losing a little sleep, Juliet?"

Katie caught her breath sharply. Juliet and Gottlieb were going out together without eating! O'Hara was holding a manish coat for Juliet—blue and belted—while she slipped into it.

"Not at all," said Juliet.

"Good! I want you sitting right there beside me while I get all the facts together," said Gottlieb. "A partner ought to know everything that's going on. How does it feel to be a rich woman?"

"I'm spending the money already," said Juliet happily.

"Don't spend it before you get it," Gottlieb grunted. "But you'll have it before long—I'm telling you. We've picked a winner this time sure as you're alive."

O'Hara seemed slightly embarrassed. "If there's anything I can do, just let me know," he said awkwardly.

Juliet gave him an absent-minded smile. "Thank you so much. Wonderful, isn't it?"

They were out as eagerly as racers leaving the mark. Behind them was the mingled scent of Gottlieb's clear and the faint fragrance from Juliet. A thrill, painfully pleasant, in Katie's breast kept rippling and rippling and rippling. She came into the room and stood quite close to O'Hara.

"You're going to stay and eat, aren't you?" she asked, remembering not to say "ain't."

O'Hara looked at her vaguely, and then by gradual stages became aware of an eagerness that was fairly radiating.

"I suppose I might as well, Katie," he said ruefully. "I don't seem to be needed in any other quarters this evening."

The violet blue in Katie's eyes darkened until it was almost black. Then, completely without premeditation, she spoke what was in her mind.

"Well, I need you this evening, and I want you, too! That's the way you stand with me, Mr. O'Hara."

O'Hara blinked his eyes once. Heretofore he had been under the impression that Katie Schmidt was a sort of a child.

"Maybe I need you, too, tonight, Katie," he blurted. "I suppose you saw how Juliet and Gottlieb walked right on me?"

Katie quivered up her eyes indignantly. "Sure I saw it! They left you at home like you were the pet poodle, didn't you care! You got more brains than all of 'em combined."

"Thanks," said O'Hara, somewhat grimly.

"I'm going to keep you right here and feed you. Look—could you go for a cocktail?"

"Could I?"

"You just sit down, and see what mamma brings you."

Katie lacked many social graces but she knew all about cocktails from much kitchen camaraderie with butlers in homes where she had worked. The lamb chops might be burnt, the vegetables soggy and the salad misère, but O'Hara, soon wrapped in a golden glow, was unaware of these deficiencies.

The potion mixed by Katie went straight to his humiliation and dissolved it.

It had been a long time since a girl as young and glittering as Katie had poured upon him so much adoration. It was a brain that saturated his wounds like a magic ointment. Drink by drink he approached the heights of Olympus.

"You're awfully crazy about Miss Juliet, aren't you?" asked Katie, with an amazing ability to keep on the main track.

"Not at all," said a dignified voice out of O'Hara.

"Yes you are, too. Only you don't know how to go about it. You oughta make her jealous."

"I'm afraid that would be a difficult job."

Yet a kind of tense arose from Katie's words—a pleasant fume that pictured Juliet satiated and content. The thought gave him a languorous satisfaction.

And Katie, with her mind upon Juliet's peach-colored dinner gown hanging beside Juliet's lovely evening wrap, was visited by a brilliant temptation. A thrilling voice told her this was the night of nights.

"You oughta snap out of it, Mr. O'Hara. Speaking for myself—I love dancing." She concentrated her eyes and narrowed them like a marksman taking aim. "Look—I'll be your pal. Why don't you and me go to a night club?"

"Night club? The great American rendezvous for morons."

"Silly! You're only a young fellow yourself, really. I'll bet you're a swell dancer."

"I've forgotten, how."

But Katie winked slyly. "I'll teach you—quick."

And O'Hara, amused and feeling his chest somehow filled with helium, observed that Katie was like a child in her eagerness for a little pleasure.

His eyes focused on the bright gleam of her patinaed head. Downstairs his rooster was waiting at the curb willing and able to take them anywhere.

Actually it meant nothing to him what he did or where he went. At the moment he could conceive nothing more important than satisfying the eager questing in Katie's keen blue eyes behind their heavily darkened lashes.

Snuggled beside him in the roadster, the girl slipped a small warm hand into the hollow of his elbow; there was an exhalation so young and spontaneous and fragrant from her bright young body that he was surrounded with an aura of half-forgotten vibrations of a youth that belonged only to yesterday.

The music rose more boisterously than ever. Then, suddenly, Katie was softly yet firmly against him.

"Feel yourself coming to life?" whispered Katie.

A canopy stretched from a frowsy building to the curb. A uniformed servant led them through a guarded door. The ante-room airless and heavily perfumed, red carpets, mirrors in gilt frames.

A glassy blonde to check their wraps. Through a swarm of people—powdered backs and mascara—they were led to a darkened booth against the wall. An uproarious orchestra gibbered insane music, while pallid men and clinging girls revolved in a tightly packed mass under blue lights. Over everything hung the thick blue haze of cigarette smoke.

In the booth, Katie's bare shoulder was pressed against his sleeve. Juliet's peach-colored gown was cut alarmingly low in the back. One of the shoulder straps kept slipping conspicuously, and Katie kept fixing it.

"White Rock," O'Hara said to the waiter.

"We can have some food later," she chimed in. "Let's dance."

Katie's form was squeezed flatly against him as they were swallowed up in the medley of indifferent humanity. They might have been dancing alone in the place, so completely were they ignored by the other preoccupied couples. Sometimes they were crushed intimately together by the eddying force of other bodies. They moved wordlessly. A binding current shuttling between them and uniting them as by some secret language of the body.

"Where can we go now?"

"Home, I suppose," said O'Hara. "All right," said Katie, with her fingers in his hair and her cheek against his flushed face.

O'Hara tossed two twenty-dollar bills to the table.

For Digestion's sake... smoke Camels

Copyright, 1936, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

BARONIAL DINING at the Winter Place Tavern in Boston. Theodore Roosevelt, Enrico Caruso, Henry Cabot Lodge praised its famous fare. Here Camels reign supreme. Nick Stuhl (left), maître d'hôtel, says: "Camels have the gift of making great dishes more enjoyable. Camels are the most popular cigarette at the Winter Place Tavern."

MEASURING THE EFFECT on digestion of smoking Camels (above). Delicate machines measure the flow of digestive secretions. The evidence shows that smoking a Camel increases the secretion of digestive fluids. The importance of this extra secretion in facilitating digestion is a matter of common knowledge. So smoke Camels... for digestion's sake... and for their costlier tobaccos. Camels set you right!

Smoking Camels Promotes Enjoyment of Good Food and Stimulates Digestion

Our nervous modern life often affects digestion. Mental effort—physical rush—slow down the flow of the digestive fluids. Smoking Camels restores and increases this necessary flow. Scientific research definitely confirms the fact that Camels encourage digestion in this pleasant way. Enjoy Camels as much as you like. They never frazzle your nerves.

WORKING AGAINST TIME. Bob Duffey, steam-shovel operator, says: "Work comes first—eating, second. You grab a bite when you can. But trust Camels to make even a quick meal taste good and feel good."

PARACHUTE JUMPER. Miss Uva Kimmey says: "My life depends on making no mistakes. I smoke Camels for digestion's sake. They encourage digestion in a pleasant way. Camels set me right!"

Costlier Tobaccos!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

LIST OBJECTS OF MUSIC WEEK

National Committee Emphasizes Strengthening of Resources

Building further upon the musical structures already established in our cities and towns is to be an objective of the thirteenth national music week, May 3-9, which has for its keynote, "Strengthen Our Musical Resources." This campaign is to carry the process of musical growth one step further than that aimed at in the previous music week, which had for its slogan "Conserve Our Musical Assets."

"The time has now come," says David Sarnoff, chairman of the national music week committee, "for the friends of music to do more than merely keep alive those of our musical assets which had been threatened with extinction due to the depression. We must place them on a solid foundation for proper growth and we must promote among the public in each community a full recognition of their value."

Mr. Sarnoff, a devoted lover of music and the other arts, a director of the Metropolitan Opera company, and president of the Radio Corporation of America, thus placed the emphasis of the 1936 music week observance upon local musical development.

The thirty-one leading national organizations represented on the committee one of which is the National Federation of Music Clubs, are urging their state and local groups to mobilize through music week in the campaign for a greater degree of musical expression among our people as an increasingly evident need in our exacting daily life. In line with the new music week plan, it is being suggested that each community in the country take stock of both its musical accomplishments and needs, that it may determine which of its musical activities most require strengthening and general community support; also what further enterprises seem most advisable for the near future. More than 2,000 cities and towns are expected to take part in the music week of May 3-9, sponsored by the national committee and by the honorary committee of Governors.

16 Major League Baseball Clubs Await Opening Day Contests

Open Season On Detroit Tigers Starts Tomorrow In American League Race

To the Roar of Dyed-In-Wool Fans Whose Enthusiasm Is Seldom Chilled by Weather, Eight Clubs Will Get Another Season Under Way

By EARL HILLIGAN,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
CHICAGO, April 13—"Open season" on those Tigers starts tomorrow.

To the roar of dyed-in-wool fans whose enthusiasm is seldom noticeably chilled by opening-day weather, and who may number upwards of 80,000, eight American league baseball clubs get another season under way Tuesday afternoon. And most of them will be gunning for the Detroit Tigers, champions of the world.

The inaugural has been especially awaited by the sports fan because it will start solution of a few of the snkiest puzzles ever to get in the eyes of the "hot stove league" fans. Will the tiger prove proudly through the league's jungle for a third straight year, or will its talons be clipped by the Indians from Cleveland, the money-jangling Boston Red Sox or the once-powerful New York Yankees?

Tigers Meet Indians

The opening day bill sends the Tigers against the Indians at Cleveland, with 25,000 fans expected to see the game. If favorable weather prevails, the Red Sox entertain the little-regarded Philadelphia Athletics in Boston, where 20,000 fans may clock the turnstiles.

The trouble-making St. Louis Browns travel to Chicago to take on the White Sox before an expected gathering of 15,000 and the Yankees open in Washington against the youthful Senators, with President Roosevelt expected to be among a crowd of about 20,000.

If optimism of managers mean very much, this year's race will be so hot the smoke may blind the batsmen in the American league. Mickey Cochrane sees an "excellent chance" for his Tigers; Joe Cronin wants only pitching support from his Red Sox; Joe McCarthy says his Yankees "have as good a chance as any club," and Steve O'Neil says flatly Cleveland "is the team to beat."

The teams shooting at the pennant won't find the Detroit Tiger easily knocked down this season. Al Simmons, acquired from Chicago, may give the club its first powerful outfield in years.

Fireworks
Boston's expensive array of established talent—Foxy, Marush, Cronin, McNair, Cramer, Rick Ferrell—may furnish the fireworks.

Cleveland, harmonized under the leadership of Steve O'Neil, appears to have the pitching to put the Indians in the thick of the fight.

New York stacks up as the dark horse. Lefty Gomez had a bad season last year and the team was slowed down by injuries.

St. Louis, with punch in its bats of West, Coleman, Solters and Bottomley, and the Chicago White Sox, who may come with some excellent pitching, will cause trouble all along the line. Washington appears to lack pitching and the Philadelphia Athletics can make baseball history, if the betting fraternity is right by climbing out of the league cellar.

BOARDMAN HI OPENS SEASON

Lowell 'Rib' Allen's tracksters To Meet Poland Saturday

BOARDMAN, April 13.—The Boardman High tracksters will open the season Saturday afternoon opposing Coach White's Poland team at Boardman.

The Boardman team, coached by Lowell 'Rib' Allen, former Salem track star, shows plenty of promise. Ralph Waggoner, diminutive speedster, showed fine form in the interclass meet, romping away with the two hurdle events and the 100-yard dash. Messmer in the half mile, Leeson, shot put, Moser and Dickson in the sprint, are expected to figure heavily in the scoring.

Coach White's Poland team will feature it's state championship relay team. With Countryman as the only missing member of the quartet, the Polanders are favored to retain their laurels in this event.

Boardman, Canton McKinley and Salem are arranging a meet for mid-May. McDonald is attempting to schedule an affair involving Salem, Boardman, Lisbon, and McDonald for April 25 but the Boardmanites will be unable to compete because of a dual meet with Lisbon on that date.

Stays Out of It

CCHOSHOTON, April 13.—Visiting h's home town here, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday he would leave in the hands of local officers of the organization, the problem of handling the strike that closed the Indianapolis Glove Co. plant 17 days ago.

Kent Will Build

KENT, April 13.—Trustees of Kent State university have approved a million dollar building program. Approval of the Ohio legislature will be sought next fall. The program, indorsed yesterday, calls for an additional classroom building, more dormitory space and a new student union building for social activities.

DECIDE SALEM ENTRY IN LOOP

Prospective Candidates For Baseball Team To Meet Tomorrow

Whether Salem will be represented in the Columbiana County Baseball league this season will be definitely decided tomorrow night when prospective candidates for a team meet at the Memorial building at 7:30.

All members of last year's Salem Merchants' club and any other interested persons are asked to attend the meeting.

Should it be decided to enter the county league, the Salem team will be handled by Merle Halverstadt and Frank Scullion. James Reaney, manager of last year's team, said today that he will be unable to pilot the club again this year, but will remain in the capacity of business manager.

The alternative to placing a team in the county league, is to form an independent club that would play only on Sunday at some nearby diamond, Reaney said.

Eight teams have already joined the county league for this season while at least two and possibly three others will post forfeits at a meeting Friday when a definite framework for the circuit will be made.

MILLERS AWAY TO FINE START

American Association Champs Open '36 Season With Victory

CHICAGO, April 13.—The Minneapolis Millers were away to a flying start today in defense of their American association championship. The Millers opened the association's 35th season in Toledo yesterday by trimming the Mudhens 3-1 before more than 9,000 fans.

Ray Kolp pitched steadily for the Minneapolis club while his mates picked up a run in the sixth and two more in the seventh. The Mudhens' counter was on Harry Davis' circuit smash in the second.

Punch of Program

It remained for Indianapolis and Kansas City, however, to put the punch in the inaugural program. Playing before 9,159 spectators at Indianapolis, the clubs battled to a 2-2 tie in 13 innings, the game being called because of the Indianapolis 6 o'clock closing law.

The St. Paul Saints dropped a 4-2 decision to the Red Birds at Columbus in a game which drew 7,500. The Red Birds collected 11 hits as their twirler, Bob Klinger, allowed nine, but was effective in the pinches. At Louisville, the Colonels gave their new manager, Burleigh Grimes, a good start by trouncing the Milwaukee Brewers, 6-1. The largest crowd of the day, 10,550 fans, saw this game, featured by pitching of Wayne La Master, a southpaw, who allowed the Brewers but six hits and struck out eight.

The Falls City Hi Brus of Indianapolis are leading the field with 3,039 as the tournament reaches its closing stages.

Final rounds of doubles and singles will be run off Tuesday afternoon, after which the $108,670 prize melon will be divided.

The best score of last evening was 2,874 by the M. O'Neil team of Akron, O.

There were two changes in the standings in the minor events yesterday. Earl Mare of Kansas City, rolled into a tie for fifth place in the singles with 704 while Bill Stecky of Cleveland assumed sixth place in the all-events with 1,935.

Scores still in the money are: teams 2,688; doubles 1,131; singles 575, and all events 1,800.

HIRAM HAS WON OLYMPIC CROWN

Small Ohio College Took Basketball Honors In 1904 Competition

(By Associated Press)
HIRAM, April 13.—Little Hiram college can watch the basketball competition in this year's Olympic with a knowing eye.

Although there hasn't been much said about it during recent seasons, Hiram went through the competition in 1904 and came out with the banner—the world's championship banner.

H. C. Matthews, director of the department of physical education at the college, has a clipping to prove it. The clipping says in part: "St. Louis, Mo., July 13.—(Special)—The intercollegiate basketball games were played in the World's Fair gymnasium today, the world's championship banner going to Hiram college, of Hiram, O."

Two In One Day
The story related how Hiram defeated Wheaton college of Wheaton, Ill., on the morning of July 13, 1904, and then went on to defeat the team of the Latter Day Saints college of Salt Lake City, Utah, late in the afternoon.

The Hiram team was confident of victory from the start. But they had to fight hard for the championship, for the playing was fast and fierce from the time play began until the end of each half, the clipping said.

It also said the Hiram players were "remarkably fast on their feet" and the "shooting was entirely of a scientific order."

SPORTS

BATTER UP!

"Batter up"—and with these two words, which will be spoken on eight diamonds tomorrow afternoon, the 1936 baseball season for the American and National leagues will be officially under way.

ABC FIVE-MAN EVENT TO END

About 50 Teams to Make Final Effort To Win World Title

Final rounds of doubles and singles will be run off Tuesday afternoon, after which the $108,670 prize melon will be divided.

National League Season Opens With Close Race For Pennant Predicted

St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs Rank As Favorites; Giants and Pirates Expected To Be Hot On Trail of the Flag

By PAUL MICKELSON,
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 13—A pennant race, so exciting and close that one injury may decide its outcome opens tomorrow over the National league baseball front with the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago's spectacular Cubs one-two favorites to capture the prize they held between them eight times out of the last 10 years.

Ranking behind the two favorites are the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates, who are expected to be hot on the trail of the flag. None of the circuit's other four—Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Boston—is granted even an outside chance of winning.

Ideal Setup

Yet, as the teams near the barrier for the gruelling 154-game race, the setup is ideal for one of the league's greatest upsets. Lack of first-class replacement material, probably the greatest void since the league started, makes it so. Every contender has one or more danger spots that threatens to blow up its chances as high as Cogan's bluff.

A consensus of the experts picks the Cardinals, whose hopes rest on the Dean brothers, Frankie Frisch and Pitcher Bud Parmelee, as the team to beat. Of the four, Frisch undoubtedly is the danger spot. Since the Cardinal boss and second baseman fall victim to an injury, the chances of the gas house gang would be reduced considerably.

The Cubs, who came from almost nowhere with their unforgettable 21-game winning streak to win last season, appear well fortified for a winning bid, but the pitching is uncertain. Charlie Root can't be expected to come back with 15 victories again. That's too much to expect from a 37-year-old veteran.

Terry Is Key Man
Bill Terry, whose left knee is sore that no one expects him to play more than half the season, is the key man to the Giant hopes. With him, the Giants would be hard to trim now that they have plugged up the second base hole with Burgess Whitehead.

Pittsburgh rates to be the biggest surprise of the race. Not only do the Pirates have sufficient reserve material and a well rounded pitching staff, but they have a first-class catcher in Al Todd, obtained during the winter deals from the Phillies.

Second division looms for the rest of the clubs—Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Boston—with the Dodgers and Reds fighting it out for top place in the lower region.

Of the four, Brooklyn may be the big surprise.

Seven events were to be run off today in the Salem High school inter-class track meet at Reilly stadium. Other events will be held at the stadium tomorrow afternoon.

The meet furnishes the first outdoor competition of the season for the Quaker thinclads. Track Coach Fred Cope expects to pick a team to represent the Red and Black in the Mansfield relays from the outstanding men in each event.

socialion, and is slated to attract schools from Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana.

Toledo Scott, defending champion, is among a number of "regular" teams which have not filed an entry this year, but the title-holders, Mehock said, are certain to participate.

Schools entered are: Cleveland Collinwood, Newark, Cleveland Lincoln, Toledo Libbey, Brecksville, Brecksville High, Junior High, East Palestine Junior High, Upper Arlington, Columbiana, Kent Roosevelt, Willard, Akron Garfield, Mansfield, John Simpson of Mansfield, Hedges Junior of Mansfield, Ashtabula, Barborton, Belleville, Cleveland West Tech, Cleveland East Tech, Cammonsburg, Pa., Fort Wayne North of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Cleveland Soccer Team In Cup Play

CLEVELAND, April 13.—The Cleveland Indians soccer team won the right to meet the Castle Shamons of Pittsburgh April 25 in the final of the western division national amateur cup soccer matches yesterday. The Indians defeated the Chicago Wilsons, 2 to 0, in the semifinals.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—T. E. Anderson has solved the problem of what to do with exhibits after the exhibition is over. At the close of the National Orange show here, he gave his exhibit of 378 boxes of choicest oranges, lemons and grapefruit to the poor.

"Dangerous," the picture that won for Bette Davis the academy award for the best performance of any actress for 1935, will be shown at the State theater Tuesday and Wednesday, on a double feature bill. Miss Davis portrays an actress who is fascinating to men and loved by them, but all men to her mean only another step in her stage career. Franchot Tone is the male lead.

"Silly Billies," the second feature, is a Wheeler-Woolsey comedy with Dorothy Lee in support of the two goofy comedians. This time they are seen in the roles of two dentists during pioneering days in the west. They go into the new found territories to pull teeth for the Indians. "Colleen" at State Tonight.
